A globally recognised degree

A degree from the University of London is a mark of excellence, respected by employers and universities worldwide. Our qualifications open doors to lucrative careers and postgraduate study opportunities, both in Singapore and worldwide.

A trusted name in global education
The University of London International Programmes is the world’s oldest provider of distance and flexible learning. We’ve been giving students across the world access to top British education since 1858. Past students include seven Nobel Prize winners, politicians, judges, authors, public servants, academics and leaders of business and industry. We now have over 52,000 students in more than 180 countries.

The University of London and Singapore
We have a long history in Singapore, with students first taking University of London exams locally in 1905. Since then, countless Singaporeans have chosen to pursue their higher education through the University of London International Programmes. We now have over 14,000 students in Singapore, making this our largest student population in the world.

Standards you can rely on
You can be confident in the standard of your degree. The standard of assessment is consistent wherever you study, whether on campus at a University of London College, or anywhere in the world. You are assessed using dependable methods, such as unseen examinations. This helps to ensure that your University of London qualification is of the same high academic standard, however it is achieved.

‘The University of London programme was tough but worthwhile. The degree teaches you how to multitask, how to think critically, to question the norm, and to have discipline, and this is very important not just for the workforce but for your daily life.’

Lin Huiling, BSc Business, 2010
Huiling chose the University of London because of its global recognition. She graduated with a First Class degree in 2010 and is now a Customer Development Executive with Unilever in Singapore. Watch an interview with Huiling on YouTube: bit.ly/lin-huiling

Hear from employers

Our graduates are highly sought after for their versatility and leadership skills in local and international organisations.

Graduates have gained jobs in financial services companies such as Ernst & Young, Deutsche Bank and Citibank; multinational companies such as Panasonic, Sony and Unilever; high technology companies, including CISCO and IBM; international agencies such as the United Nations and World Health Organisation, as well as a raft of local employers, including the Ministry of Manpower.

Deloitte Singapore

Deloitte, one of the Big Four professional services firms in the world, has a strong record of employing University of London graduates. In 2012, three new graduates gained jobs at Deloitte Singapore, joining 2010 graduate Seow Jen Yi who was already employed as an Audit Senior. The graduates, who all achieved First Class degrees in Accounting and Finance, studied with support from SAA Global Education, a recognised centre for the University of London International Programmes.

Foo Kon Tan Grant Thornton

Foo Kon Tan Grant Thornton LLP, the Singapore member firm of leading international accounting and consultancy firm Grant Thornton, has hired over 20 University of London graduates. These graduates studied at Singapore Institute of Management, a recognised centre for the University of London International Programmes.

‘We find University of London graduates who studied at Singapore Institute of Management a good fit for our firm, Grant Thornton. I would say they are every employer’s dream of an employee. They possess a certain level of maturity, are willing to learn, independent, and street smart. Professionals need a full range of skills apart from technical proficiency.’

Mr Ong Soo Ann, Partner, Foo Kon Tan Grant Thornton LLP, Singapore

‘Deloitte Singapore welcomes and attracts talented accountants from all over the world. As such, we welcome the contribution and talent diversity that the University of London graduates who studied at SAA Global Education, the education arm of ICPAS, bring to our firm.’

Ms Seah Gek Choo, Talent Partner, Deloitte Singapore

About your study

Our distance and flexible study method gives you as much choice as possible about how, when and where you study.

Study independently or get local tuition
In Singapore, you can study with one of our network of recognised teaching institutions that support our undergraduate programmes. These institutions offer lectures and seminars which help you to structure your studies and give you an opportunity to meet other students. If you want a more flexible option, you can study independently by distance learning. More information about teaching institutions is on page 10.

Support for your studies
All our students have access to a range of printed materials and online learning resources, which draw on the cutting-edge research of the Colleges of the University of London.

Specially written study materials:
- Student handbook and subject guides
- Textbooks for some courses

Online support via the student portal:
- Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) with online resources and discussion forums where you can interact with students from around the world to gain a global perspective
- Online Library with access to online journals and databases
- Administrative support

Applying for undergraduate programmes
The application deadline for undergraduate degrees is 1 October each year. You can apply online through the webpage of your chosen programme: www.londoninternational.ac.uk/courses If you intend to study at a local institution, you should contact them for advice. We also have a local admissions office based at RELC in Singapore that can assist you with your application. For more information visit: www.relc.org.sg

Undergraduate entrance requirements
The following qualifications from Singapore meet our general entrance requirements:
- Two passes from the Singapore/Cambridge Advanced level General Certificate of Education, at grade E or above plus three further passes from the Singapore/Cambridge General Certificate of Education at grade C or above.
- Three passes from the Singapore/Cambridge...
Advanced level General Certificate of Education, with not less than grade E in two of these subjects and grade D in one.
- Polytechnic Advanced Diploma / Certificate / Diploma / Specialist Diploma provided duration of programme is at least 2 years full time

There are many other qualifications from Singapore that may be accepted for entry, for a more comprehensive list see:
www.londoninternational.ac.uk/sites/default/files/entrance_qualifications.pdf

You may also need to meet additional programme-specific entry criteria, which are listed on the programme webpages:
www.londoninternational.ac.uk/courses

All applicants need to demonstrate a certain level of English language.

Alternative entry routes
If you don’t meet our entrance requirements, you may still be eligible for our Diplomas in Economics, Law and Social Sciences. These one-year Diplomas give you entry to the second year of related degrees. They can only be studied with support from specific teaching institutions, which set their own entry requirements. Please see page 10 for the list of institutions.

Applying for postgraduate programmes
You generally need to hold at least a second class honours degree, or equivalent, to be eligible. Please visit the programme webpages for entry requirements, application deadlines and to apply online:
www.londoninternational.ac.uk/courses

Fast-track degree routes
You may be able to complete your degree in only two years if you have previous undergraduate level studies in a related discipline. In Singapore, many Polytechnic qualifications give you automatic credit for first year courses in LSE-directed degrees. If you already have an undergraduate degree, you may be eligible for Graduate Entry for LLB and LSE-directed degrees, which can reduce your study to two years. For more information please see the ‘Requirements’ tab on programme webpages:
www.londoninternational.ac.uk/courses

‘My job requires me to understand banking regulations and laws governing different countries. The knowledge I gained from the LLB has helped me in many ways, especially in interpreting and understanding policies. The analytical skills I picked up help me make sound management decisions.’

Thomson Png, Bachelor of Laws (LLB), 2009
Thomson Png is a Bank Manager at a foreign bank in Singapore. After working almost 10 years in managerial positions in the banking industry, he decided to broaden his skills by pursuing an LLB. Watch an interview with Thomson and his wife:

Teaching institutions in Singapore

We work with a network of about 70 independent teaching institutions worldwide that have been formally recognised to provide tuition support for our students.

Known as recognised centres, these institutions have been identified as meeting a specific set of quality criteria. There are two categories of recognised centre:

- Affiliate Centres have demonstrated a sustained commitment to the quality of teaching, support and administration for our students.
- Registered Centres have demonstrated acceptable standards of teaching, support and administration for supporting our students.

Affiliate Centre status is the highest level of recognition awarded by the University of London.

For many years I was under the impression that I wasn’t “good” at studying as I did not do well in my A levels. This degree proved an excellent “second chance”. If it didn’t exist, I probably would never have had the opportunity to gain admission into a top UK university like Oxford. I am now planning to study for a PhD.

Tommy Khoo, BSc Mathematics and Economics

Tommy overcame poor school grades to gain a First Class degree and win a place to do an MSc in Mathematics and the Foundations of Computer Science at the University of Oxford. Read more about Tommy on London Connection: bit.ly/tommy-khoo
